HIGH LINE TRAIL — BANFF TO LAKE LOUISE

Spectacular Route for Trail Ride of 1939

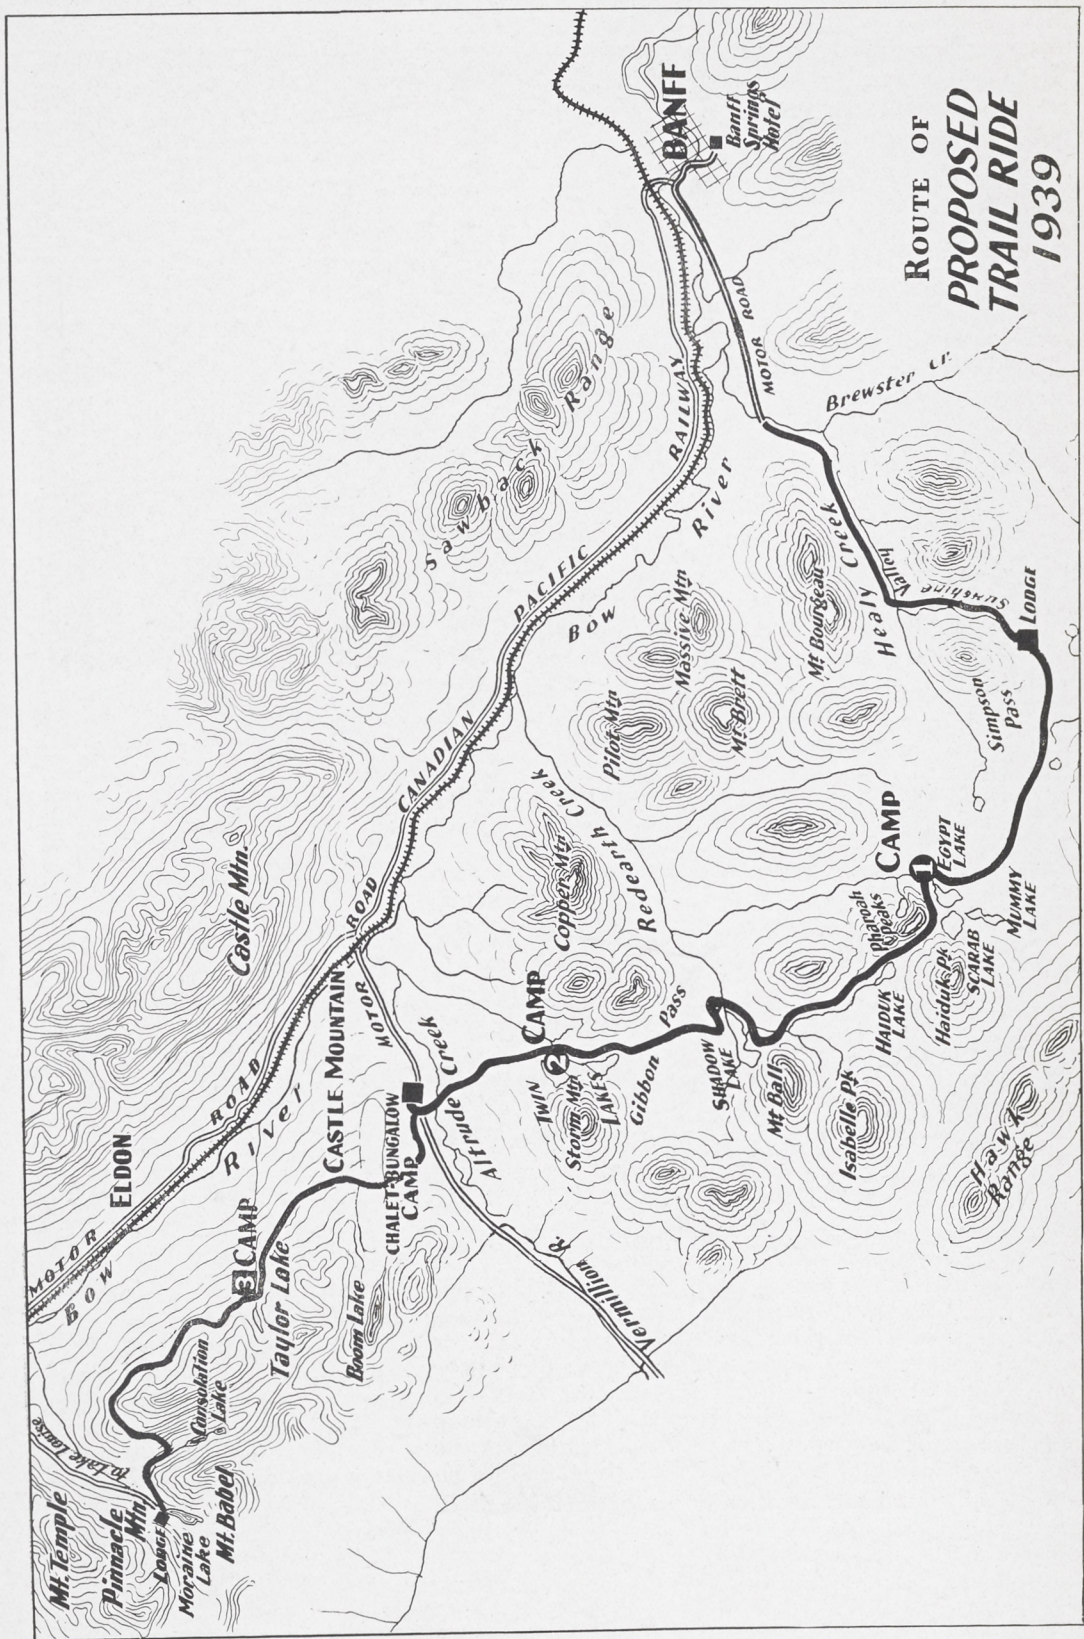

At last after many years of waiting it has been possible to arrange for a Trail Ride over a High Line between Banff and Moraine Lake (for Lake Louise) — The gaps which hitherto have intervened will no longer be gaps next July as the most difficult section of the route was surveyed, located, blazed and, so far as possible, opened last September by Claude Brewster and Chet Ogan with funds that came out of our surplus. There still remains some clearing up to do both on this part of the trail and also in the Egypt Lakes section, but we are promised the co-operation of the Parks Branch for this, and so the Trail Committee has definitely decided that the Annual Trail Ride for 1939 shall be over this new High Line.

We shall start from Banff early on the morning of July 28th, joining our horses somewhere on Healey Creek and ride over Simpson Pass to our first camp on Egypt Lake. Next day passing Pharoah and Heiduk Lakes, we cross Whistling Valley Pass to Shadow Lake under Mount Ball and then ride over Gibbon Pass to Twin Lakes. The third day takes us past Storm Mountain where Harry Pollard operates his bungalow camp on the Banff - Windermere Automobile Road and then round by a corner of Boom Lake over the ridge which separates that lake from the Bow Valley, where we go over a new high trail to Taylor Lake. Here we are told is an ideal site for a lay-over camp with fishing and very spectacular scenery within easy reach. As we can see from the photograph on the front page, Taylor Lake itself is exceptionally beautiful. There is a pass to Consolation Lake which, however, cannot easily be negotiated with horses, but the summit commands magnificent views.

Riders will start from Banff early on the morning of Friday, July 28th and return to Banff or Lake Louise, evening of Tuesday, August 1st.

The fifth day is through larch country and above timberline for most of the way. The panorama of the Bow Valley is very impressive as seen from this elevation, and there are wonderful views of the high peaks at the head of Ptarmigan Valley. Then the trail drops down to Consolation Lake and Moraine Lake, where we shall hold the Pow Wow on Tuesday, August 1st. Busses will be available to convey Trail Riders from Moraine Lake to Lake Louise or Banff at special low rates. The rate for the actual five day Trail Ride will be $45. A limited number of sleeping bags are available for rent at $5.

As this will undoubtedly be a very popular Trail Ride, and as the number of those who can take part must be limited, early reservations are necessary.

So make up your mind now, and advise the Secretary-Treasurer.

"WITH THE ADVANCE PARTY TO TAYLOR LAKE"

By JOHN GIBBON

When Claude Brewster asked me if I would like to go along with his trail-cutting crew to Taylor Lake last September, it was an opportunity not to be missed. Much interest had been aroused among Trail Riders upon the announcement this spot had been selected as the stop-over point of next year's Trail Ride; yet because of its relative inaccessibility, due to the lack of a trail, I doubt if more than two or three members of our organization had ever seen it until last autumn. Thus I had an opportunity of verifying all that had been said of its charm and beauty, and of having a grand time into the bargain.

Ranch, made up the official trail-cutting gang, and proved just as adept at swinging axes and handling saws as they are riding and roping for the edification of the dudes at Mrs. Bill's during the summer season. No expedition could be complete without an official photographer, so arrangements were made for Nick Morant and his charming wife Willie to ride in with us from Castle Mountain Camp, the starting point of the new trail. Ten pack horses, loaded down with equipment and supplies for two weeks, completed the party.

About mid-day, off we started into the jungle, for that's just about what it proved

Trail Cutter's Camp near Taylor Lake

Lying about half way between Storm Mountain and Moraine Lake, Taylor Lake is high up among the peaks on the south side of the Bow Valley. Some years ago, a trail was cut to run along the lower slopes of the valley for five miles or so, switching to the left and up a gap leading to the lake. Rather than re-open this old trail, which follows a rather uninteresting route through low-lying and swampy terrain, it was Claude's idea to cut a brand-new trail, high up on the skyline. As it turned out, this project was a very sound one, for this new trail is as spectacular as any in the Rockies.

Chet Ogan, Claire Crosby, Jim Burroughs, and Steve Kovak, all from Kananaskis

to be. The old trail was so blocked with fallen timber that pioneer Chet Ogan decided to strike up higher, and so, for about six hours, we pushed our way along the side of the valley. In spite of Chet's cheery assurances every fifteen minutes that "Taylor Lake is just around the next bend", Nick, Willie and I were beginning to doubt the very existence of the Lake. Fortunately, just before dark, we struck the gap which cuts south between two peaks, and after some vigorous climbing and scrambling by our ponies which would put the average eastern horse to shame, we rode into the valley where lay the lake, gleaming in the sunset.

At the sight of our objective, Morant, who several days before had tried to reach it by walking in from Moraine Lake, leapt from his horse, offered up a prayer of thanks, and fell to the ground, senseless with emotion. Mrs. Morant and I administered stimulants to the temperamental photographer, and in a few minutes he came round, though it took some hours to convince him we really had reached our goal.

Teepees were pitched in a beautiful little valley on high ground lying about half a mile from the lake. In choosing this spot as the location of the camp during the stop-over next summer, Claude has had an eye towards the practical side of a Trail Ride. Apart from being an ideal camp sight, with plenty of water and wood near at hand, it is a comparatively easy place in which to hold horses overnight, for it is almost impossible for them to head for home via the bottle-neck at the open end of the valley without passing the tents. The lush meadow land provides a good supply of feed, and there is little temptation for the ponies to wander far afield.

Setting up a permanent camp and planning out a course of action for the following two weeks took up most of the first day. Claude had calculated that it would take about a week of cutting and clearing to complete the new trail back to Castle Mountain Camp, and about the same time working in the other direction to Moraine Lake. The whole job actually took about eighteen days, and from what I saw of it, and the surrounding country, I prophesied that this new trail, linking up Storm Mountain with Moraine Lake is going to become one of the high spots in any Trail Rider's career.

As Nick had to return on the following day, he had little time to rest and recover from the strenuous ride in. He and Mrs. Morant scampered up and down most of the mountains in the vicinity, taking pictures with a wild abandon.

Pearl White and the old-time serial queens had nothing on Willie, who deserves a life-membership in the Alpine Club for some of her daring rock-climbing while posing for Nick. A fall into Taylor Creek almost brought disaster to the latter's camera, but a hurried inspection revealed no serious damage, and the photographs reproduced in this bulletin not only reveal his skill as a cameraman, but testify to the beauty of the lake and the surrounding country.

Trail cutting started in earnest the next day, and although swinging an axe may look easy, I found it just about the hardest work I have ever attempted. Thereupon, I appointed myself "strawboss", my duties consisting chiefly of offering advice, dish-washing, fishing with a make-shift rod and line, and generally lounging about. Incidentally, Trail Riders on the forthcoming Ride should not neglect to bring along fishing tackle. About three or four years ago, the lake was stocked up, and as there has been almost no fishing in it since, one can catch the limit in a hour or so quite easily.

Being September, the nights were rather cold, but the heat of the days was almost tropical, and by eleven in the morning, the intense sun usually prompted us to doff all heavy clothing. Work progressed quickly, and when I rode out with Ogan after a week's stay, the trail back to Storm Mountain was almost completed. The return trip took less than two hours, as compared with almost seven coming in.

Unfortunately, I did not have an opportunity of seeing the new trail joining up Taylor to Moraine Lake, but I have heard that it is almost as beautiful and spectacular as that to Storm Mountain. One thing I can promise — no Trail Rider who makes the Ride this summer is going to be disappointed, and I know that many will want to make the trip again, for it is truly one of the finest sections of newly-opened country in the park.

Maxine Macleay

AN ARTIST OF THE FOOTHILLS

By Dean E. A. HOWES
University of Alberta.

The subject of this brief review is essentially a product of the foothills. Maxine Macleay was born on the ranch belonging to her father and situated near High River, Alberta. This ranch occupies one of the most picturesque ranching areas in the foothills, and no doubt this home setting has had a good deal to do in making Maxine what she is.

Back in the fall of 1928 I visited this ranch for the first time. There were a lot of gates to open when we were driving, and I remember feeling so sorry for this girl who insisted on opening the gates — never was sympathy more wasted.

As time passed on she entered the University, and against her father's wishes and my counsel she entered our Faculty of Agriculture. She was an outstanding student from the first. She had in mind securing not only the cultural side of her education but also the more technical side which had to do with the health and nutrition of the livestock, in which her father was primarily interested. She took an active part in student affairs, headed a fraternity for a while and then went home each summer to work on her father's ranch. She actually worked because along with her sister and one or more of my own daughters the summer was spent in active handling of cattle. There was no Dude Ranch atmosphere there.

It did not take us long to recognize Maxine's ability in drawing, painting and sketching, and during the years that have passed she has been of a great deal of assistance to people who needed that sort of thing. Many have marvelled that one with her background and training should have so much skill, and I am tempted to venture an explanation. I referred to the beautiful sweep of the foothills country. The man must be dead indeed who can visit these without getting a thrill. However, Maxine must have had this talent latent upon which her present skill is based. I would say that she has a flair for accuracy and for analysis. She is best known for her picturization of cowboys, Indians and natural life.

Now the cowboy is the world's greatest egotist. I put him even ahead of the Scot, whose famous toast concludes, 'Wha's like us? Damn few.' Like with the Scot, there is a reason for this egotism. I have always thought that Maxine, instead of writing about the cowboys' individualities, idiosyncrasies and specializations, has done this in pencil and brush in a way that I have not seen excelled — not even by the famous Russell.

As for the Indians, one can easily understand a little girl's interest in the native sons and daughters who came weekly to visit her father's ranch. She surely has depicted the Indians as they are.

I spoke of her accuracy. I remember when a large mountain lion or cougar was killed back in the hills, Maxine just had to know not only the size, over all, of this animal, but the comparative length of head, neck, torso and tail. No doubt she has painted his picture.

During the past fall, along with our family she visited Elk Island Park, one of the great buffalo parks of Alberta. She had seen little or nothing of buffalos before. We had a great chance, that day, to study the sizes, sexes and ages and I was astonished at the accuracy with which she sketched there animals afterwards.

I have not mentioned her ability at picturing cattle and horses, and by the way, she is a good horsewoman. I do not say sheep, because Maxine has evidently achieved the complex of the cattleman toward sheep. I fear that, had she lived in Biblical times, she would have been more interested in Lot's cowboys, who made whoopee in the dance halls of Sodom and Gomorrah rather than in the comparatively sober sheep herders whom the diplomatic Abraham had moved to the quiet side hills of the horizon. Well, we all have our complexes, so let it go.
